In April of 2016, Target announced its so-called transgender bathroom policy. The use of Target bathrooms would no longer be linked to physical or birth characteristics of male and female. Each individual's "self-identification" on any particular day would determine appropriate bathroom use. Target customers who self-identify as male can use the men's restroom. And Target customers who self-identify as female can use the women's restroom.

Arrest at Target in Idaho (July 11, 2016)

Police in Idaho Falls arrested Sean Patrick Smith for allegedly taking pictures of a woman in a Target fitting room. Smith, 43, goes by Shauna and identifies as transgender. Police and the Idaho town charge Smith with voyeurism for using a cell phone to capture images of a 18-year-old trying on swimwear.

This is the type of harm and disorder we can expect as other companies and public schools follow the dangerously zany Target bathroom policy.
